

DIY Zoning: Beyond Installation

by Vadim Tkachenko

1. Taking good care of DZ

When your heart doesn't bother you, you don't notice. That means it's working just fine.

This quotation was made a design principle for DZ. It required very little attention during two years of active operation in my old house. Now that it is more stable then back then and can issue audible fault notifications (and send messages to your mail account SMS enabled cell phone), it should require even less attention. Install, fire and forget. If DZ feels sick, it'll let you know.

Other than this, I don't even know what to say... At the moment. Keep watching the news - the project is evolving.

FIXME (VT):

Write up a piece re: integration with security system, using PDAs for remote control, weather station, etc.

© 2004 Vadim Tkachenko